

TeamQ Report

Team-Q was developed for self and peer assessment of an individual's teamwork skills. It is designed for undergraduate education as a practical method for assessing teamwork as a learning outcome. The following describes teamwork behaviors, with students report on a five point scale how often their peers (and self) demonstrate each of the behaviors (Never, Sometimes, Usually, Regularly, Always).

TeamQ Ratings Radar

Below is a radar chart that presents the results of your teammates rating of your abilities and your own ratings of your abilities. The ratings of your teammates have been averaged together for ease of comparison.

Suggestions to Improve

Part of the TeamQ was to “Write one specific, actionable goal to help your teammate improve their teamwork competency”. Presented below are the goals you wrote for yourself, followed by the goals your teammates wrote for you.

Feedback	Comment
others	Continue bringing enthusiasm to creativity to group assignments Be more flexible with group meeting times you seem to have a very busy schedule
others	Keep Doing Contributes interesting ideas Active group participant Being creative Do More You ve gotten more comfortable now with contributing during group meetings compared to the beginning of the semester so keep it up others	Martyna is really strong energizer and brings a lot of excitement to the group I appreciate that she struck with her idea of the talking carrot when we discouraged it because it was very helpful during the sessions She and Sheila came up with a really innovative idea for their session and I am very thankful that they started the day off with such a strong group She also did a great job editing the overall protocol in addition to writing her own session plans She was always good at communicating how her work was coming a long and is easy fun to work with others	Your amazing personality and ability to word things very smartly is so appreciated
others	Martyna contributes greatly to our group through researching writing and sharing and listening to everyone s ideas She is always positive and encouraging