

TeamQ Report

Team-Q was developed for self and peer assessment of an individual's teamwork skills. It is designed for undergraduate education as a practical method for assessing teamwork as a learning outcome. The following describes teamwork behaviors, with students report on a five point scale how often their peers (and self) demonstrate each of the behaviors (Never, Sometimes, Usually, Regularly, Always).

TeamQ Ratings Radar

Below is a radar chart that presents the results of your teammates rating of your abilities and your own ratings of your abilities. The ratings of your teammates have been averaged together for ease of comparison.

Suggestions to Improve

Part of the TeamQ was to “Write one specific, actionable goal to help your teammate improve their teamwork competency”. Presented below are the goals you wrote for yourself, followed by the goals your teammates wrote for you.

Feedback	Comment
others	Great work Thanks for always being positive and bringing a fun energy to the group others	Thank you so much for all you hard work this term Thanks for you smiles jokes and keeping us positive As well as wisdom towards the projects awesome job
others	Katelyn you bring so much fun and energy to our team You are so encouraging and always provide a fresh perspective when we get bogged down or stressed I really appreciate how you can be a neutral voice when there is conflict in our group I will really miss having you as a teammate next year
others	Katelyn should continue to bring optimism to group meetings as she is often in a great mood She has formed strong bonds with other members of the team though needs to sometimes be reminded to stay focused on the task at hand without being too distracted Furthermore although it can be extremely challenging Katelyn should try to be flexible about group meeting times Katelyn is willing to help out wherever the group needs her strengths and is prepared to work with all members on any task
others	Keep being you Your optimistic energy makes every group project awesome Your willingness to take on any aspect of group projects is great and your timely work ethic is appreciated Great Work
