

TeamQ Report

Team-Q was developed for self and peer assessment of an individual's teamwork skills. It is designed for undergraduate education as a practical method for assessing teamwork as a learning outcome. The following describes teamwork behaviors, with students report on a five point scale how often their peers (and self) demonstrate each of the behaviors (Never, Sometimes, Usually, Regularly, Always).

TeamQ Ratings Radar

Below is a radar chart that presents the results of your teammates rating of your abilities and your own ratings of your abilities. The ratings of your teammates have been averaged together for ease of comparison.

Suggestions to Improve

Part of the TeamQ was to “Write one specific, actionable goal to help your teammate improve their teamwork competency”. Presented below are the goals you wrote for yourself, followed by the goals your teammates wrote for you.

Feedback	Comment
others	Keep being the peacemaker that we need for the group with your humour sprinkled in to bring up our moods Your contributions are thoughtful and help advance our work incorporating a unique perspective that we often don t think of Please try to complete your contribution to a team project by the deadlines we have decided on others	Your work on the session plans was creative and you were very enthusiastic to develop the plans You brought interesting and helpful research to the table and planned an interesting session for all participants If there is anything for you to work on it would be to take a look at your sections well in advance of group meetings when if possible so that all members can review your contributions as well others	You re great at thinking outside of the box and I think people could benefit from hearing your ideas even more You always add a unique and interesting perspective to your work and frame your section of the content well within theory the nitty gritty detail I actually find this really helpful so I think it would be even better to have those perspectives from you even earlier on the in the group process sometimes so that we can get the most of it You re also great at validating and encouraging so keep doing that others	Dan you re great at presentations and always keep the group laughing Thanks for being a great team member