

TeamQ Report

Team-Q was developed for self and peer assessment of an individual's teamwork skills. It is designed for undergraduate education as a practical method for assessing teamwork as a learning outcome. The following describes teamwork behaviors, with students report on a five point scale how often their peers (and self) demonstrate each of the behaviors (Never, Sometimes, Usually, Regularly, Always).

TeamQ Ratings Radar

Below is a radar chart that presents the results of your teammates rating of your abilities and your own ratings of your abilities. The ratings of your teammates have been averaged together for ease of comparison.

Suggestions to Improve

Part of the TeamQ was to “Write one specific, actionable goal to help your teammate improve their teamwork competency”. Presented below are the goals you wrote for yourself, followed by the goals your teammates wrote for you.

Feedback	Comment
others	Keep staying on top of group assignments and encouraging others to do the same Continue to be well organized and committed to completing assignments in timely manner Keep your positive attitude when interacting at group meetings to help the group manage stress You were very helpful in reminding others of deadlines assignments and group meetings which was great for helping the group manage their time efficiently
others	You have done so much for our team to keep us focused and directed towards our goals in completing our projects Thanks for always taking initiative and the first step in getting the ball rolling
others	You do an excellent job of mediating being the in between to make sure everyone has a say and is happy with our end result You re also really good at being proactive It was a pleasure to work with you
others	Great to work with You were always well prepared encouraged others and often went above and beyond expectations
others	Hannah you have been an amazing team member You go above and beyond on every assignment You keep the mood happy and productive