TeamQ Report

Team-Q was developed for self and peer assessment of an individual's teamwork skills. It is designed for undergraduate education as a practical method for assessing teamwork as a learning outcome. The following describes teamwork behaviors, with students report on a five point scale how often their peers (and self) demonstrate each of the behaviors (Never, Sometimes, Usually, Regularly, Always).

TeamQ Ratings Radar

Below is a radar chart that presents the results of your teammates rating of your abilities and your own ratings of your abilities. The ratings of your teammates have been averaged together for ease of comparison.
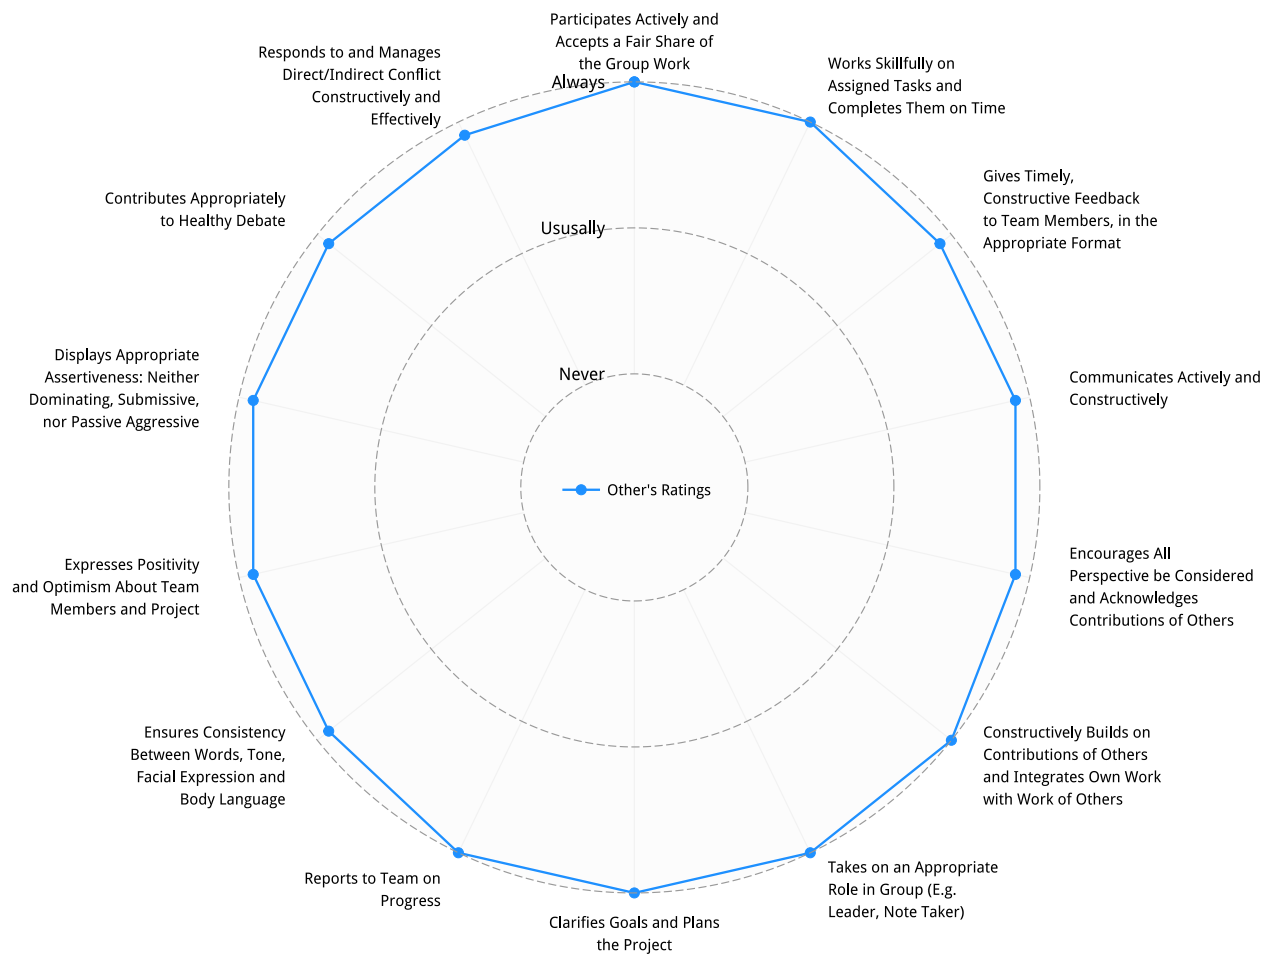

Suggestions to Improve

Part of the TeamQ was to "Write one specific, actionable goal to help your teammate improve their teamwork competency". Presented below are the goals you wrote for yourself, followed by the goals your teammates wrote for you.

Feedback	Comment
others	Keep being a guiding leader through meetings and beyond Your ability to summarize a task or to find the common ground between two differing schools of thought or opinions of group members is incredibly valuable and has helped us succeed as a group Please try to contribute your opinions more when you can because your thoughts and opinions are valued
others	Your efficiency and attention to detail are huge assets to any group Likewise you have a great ability to zoom out and see the big picture allowing us to focus our energy on the parts that matter most Your kind and understanding nature also creates an approachable environment
others	You ve been an excellent and crucial team member Your assertiveness and leadership was useful in most circumstances thank you for that but sometimes it seemed like you weren t completely considering acknowledging the suggestions and contributions of others You also helped keep the group on track on many occasions I m so glad to have had you in the team
others	Jill you give our group a lot of direction and keep us all on track You always make sure things are going to get done and I appreciate that you always print things off and give things a once over